

TWENTY-EIGHTH CONGRESS,
FIRST SESSION.

TUESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1843.

SENATE.

The Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Tuston, opened with a brief and impressive prayer.

Mr. BENTON then rose, and pronounced, with much feeling and propriety, a eulogy upon his deceased colleague, Dr. Linn, who died on the 3d of October last, at the age of forty-eight. Lewis Field Linn was born in the vicinity of Louisville, Kentucky, and was most respectfully descended; his grandfather, while a resident of Western Pennsylvania, was famous, even in his youth, for his services and exploits. At eleven years of age he was found in the ranks of men. The father of Dr. Linn was early left an orphan, and when a boy was captured, in company with three other youths, by the Indians, among whom he remained in captivity for a period of three years. In referring to the hardships and daring of the persons of that time, Mr. B. said, Mr. President, "women and boys were men in those days."

Dr. Linn was first appointed to the Senate by the Governor of Missouri, and afterwards three times elected by the Legislature. He was ten years in the Senate, from 1833 to 1843. Mr. B. concluded by passing a high tribute upon the private virtues of his friend, and moving the customary resolution.

Mr. CRITTENDEN declared his hearty concurrence in the resolution, and the eloquent tribute paid by the Senator of Missouri upon the deceased. He feared that anything he might add would only impair the effect of what had been so well said, yet he could not avoid giving utterance to his feelings on this occasion, which he knew were shared by all around him; for who was there that had ever met Dr. Linn who could forget his warm smile, the sunshine of the heart? Besides, said Mr. C., the departed, although at that time a Senator from Missouri, had his origin in Kentucky, and I claim that, by a sort of high and natural law of intelligence, part of the honor which such an individual confers properly belongs to the land of his nativity. Mr. C. dwelt for some time upon the virtues of Dr. Linn; and said, in conclusion, "that in him the elements were so blended that nature might stand up and say, this was a man."

The Senate adjourned.

THE JOURNAL AGAIN.

Mr. BARNARD moved again to amend the journal of yesterday, which he desired to have correctly made up in reference to the proceedings of the House.

Mr. DROMGOOLE objected to the reception of the resolution.

Mr. BARNARD expressed himself as both pained and surprised at the course taken by the gentleman from Virginia; his motion was perfectly respectful to the House and could not justly be thrust aside.

Mr. DROMGOOLE insisted that as the House had acted upon this subject, it could not be brought up again; it was not respectful to the House.

Mr. J. R. INGERSOLL spoke at considerable length in defence of the position assumed by the majority of this body in reference to the protest. He argued the question in its constitutional bearing.

Mr. ROBERT DALE OWEN would not admit that the Constitution was regarded with more veneration by the majority than by the minority. He argued that the action of the House had been equitable to all parties.

[At this point, a message came in from the Senate announcing their adjournment; see Senate proceedings.]

Mr. BOWLIN, of Mo., called for the reading of the Senate resolutions, and went on to pay a tribute to the memory of the late Senator from his State. A similar resolution was adopted here, as in the Senate, and in conformity therewith, the House adjourned.

LOCAL NEWS.

Several of the Iowa Indians visited the Senate Chamber yesterday, near the hour of assembling, and stared around for sometime, without, however, testifying the least surprise at what they saw, or moving a single muscle.

Mesmerism.—The experiments of Mr. Webster at the Assembly Rooms last evening, were of the most interesting character. "Frederick the Great" was in due keeping. All lovers of the marvellous should not fail to attend. The experiments will be repeated this and every other evening during the week.

Temperance Fair.—Last night!—This is the last opportunity you will have to see the Fair ladies. Go and cheer them on in their holy work. Give them a parting (we had like to have said "kiss") blessing, by shelling out your small change.

Theatre.—It will be seen by the advertisement that Mr. Richings, the able and accomplished stage manager, takes a benefit this evening. Independent of the attractive bill he offers, there are other considerations which should induce the public to give him a bumper. He appears for the first time before a Washington audience in the new drama of "Washington," which, we are informed, is of intense interest. To add to the attractions of the evening, Mr. Hackett, who has been engaged for one night, appears in his original character of Col. Nimrod Wildfire, in the comedy of the "Kentuckian." Mr. Hackett is a host himself. We expect to see the house crowded from pit to dome.

FRENCH VEGETABLE PILLS.—These Pills are the scientific prescription of a celebrated French Physician, for the cure of a certain, well known disease, called GONORRHEA. They are universally used throughout Europe, particularly by the French, who, by their special attention to this disease, are the best qualified to judge of their importance; and, having been recently introduced into the city of New York, their use is becoming very popular, and successful; they are found invaluable for all chronic diseases of the urinary organs, especially for Gleet, or any Chronic Inflammation of the Urethra, not connected with Gonorrhea. The high importance attached to these Pills, is, from the fact, that all the ingredients are vegetable, and entirely destitute of all mercurial preparation; and very agreeable and pleasant to the taste, as well as extremely convenient to take without exposure. This composition having been examined and approved by the first Physicians in the city of New York, is pronounced decidedly superior to all the nauseous and offensive medicines of the shops, and quack medicines of the day; and Physicians generally are invited, and respectfully urged to make a fair trial of these Pills, as it is sincerely believed, they will be found more convenient and successful than any other preparation now in use. To be had wholesale and retail at J. F. CALAN'S, 7th street, at $1 per box. dec 13-4t

SPECTACLES.—My attention has been called to an article in the public papers and circulated in handbills about this city, called "Perfect Spectacles," said to be constructed in accordance with the philosophy of nature, in the form of a Concavo-Convex Ellipsoid. What is meant by the philosophy of nature may be hard to tell, but certainly they are at variance from the laws or principles of Optics, as certainly no Ellipsoid can converge the rays of light to a perfect focus. They are said not to be the French meniscus or Wollaston's periscope (one and the same construction of glasses.) The meniscus lens is a truly ground surface, concave on one side; the other side, possessing a greater degree of sphericity, consequently becomes a magnifying glass. This species of glass will converge the rays of light the same as a double convex lens. The application of this form of lenses in the shape of Spectacles, gives the eye a greater field of vision. The celebrated Dr. Brewster, in speaking of these Spectacles says that they give decidedly more important visions than common spectacles, because they increase both the aberration of figure and of color; but they may be of use in a crowded city in warning us of the oblique approach of objects. Now, as spectacles are intended to assist nature, and the eye, the most perfect masterpiece of Divine Mechanism (in its natural state), every part has the very form and office which the laws of optics require for the most perfect vision of an object. Is it not preposterous to apply a piece of bent concave or convex glass without true form or figure to its assistance? On the contrary, is it not reasonable to conclude that their continued use would destroy the eye entirely? Spectacles are probably the most ancient of all optical instruments, and yet have undergone the least change of any. The subject has been well considered by Opticians throughout all Europe for ages, and the general conviction is that a truly ground concave or convex lens is the most suitable for assisting decaying or unnatural visions of the human eye. R. PATTEN.

The subscribers have for sale at their manufactory, on Pennsylvania avenue, south side, between 10th and 11th streets, a general assortment of the best of Spectacles, with truly ground glasses. Armstrong, and with it your most esteemed present, a package of your Hoarhound Candy, for which I receive my sincere thanks. I can only add, that my thousands receive from its use as much benefit, as I have done, then will its inventor go down to posterity as one of our benefactors. I am, gentlemen, very respectfully, Your friend and obedient servant, ANDREW JACKSON, Messrs. Pease & Sons, Washington, April 6, 1843.
